Has Lead of 3 With Four Holes to Go on Byers, but Loses at Extra Hole.

PENNSYLVANIA BY 11 TO 4

Only Metropolitan Golfers to Win Singles Are Kirkby and Herreshoff.

NOBLE, Pa., Sept. 28.-The Metropolitan Golf Association team met its Waterloo in the decisive match for the Lesley cup over the links of the Huntingdon Valley Country tinb to-day. Playing steadily throughout the day, the Pennsylvania Golf Association representatives took command of the situation in the morning, when they secured a 3 to 2 lead in the foursomes. The rout came after luncheon, when eight of the ten matches in the singles were won by Pennsylvania making an 11 to 4 total in their favor. The only Metropolitan golfers to win in the singles were Fred Herreshoff and Oswald Kirkby. Hetreshoff proved too much for W. C. Fownes, Jr., of Oakmont, while the New Jersey champion downed W. P. Smith of Philadelphia. Among those to taste the dregs of defeat was Jerome D. Travers of I pper Montclair, holder of the national and metropolitan titles. After being unsuc cessful in the foursomes Travers lost an extra hole to E. M. Byers of Allegheny. The enesided nature of the defeat of the Metropolitan team came as a deep surprise to every one. After the foursomes even the most sanguine of the Philadelphians had their doubts as to the ability of their favorities to make much of a stand in the

Byers missed a putt of scarcely more than a foot in length to win the first hole from Travers, but thereafter little fault could be found with the Pittsburg man's short game. Travers won the second hole in a good 3. He was one up going to the short fifth, where Byers brought off a long putt for a 2. By winning the ninth hole in 4 Travers reached the turn one up, getting out in 41 to the other's 42. Later on Travers drew away and when he stood 3 up with only four holes and when he stood 3 up with only four holes to play he seemed to have the match at his mercy. He grew suddenly ragged, how-ever, especially at the sixteenth and seventeenth. They were then all square, so that a half in 4 at the home hole sent them to the nineteenth tee. At the extra hole Byers won with a 4. The card;

A good 4 at the first hole quickly placed the Met pair one up, but thereafter for several holes first one or the other managed to slip a cog. Down the hill to the second green Travers drove into the water, while Reid putted weakly on the fifth and sixth greens. This placed the New York ers 3 down, but the vagaries of the game were illustrated in the happenings from there to the eighth, which resulted in Travers and Reid winning three holes off the reel and squaring the match. Poor approaches in which both of the Pittsburgers nents to turn for home I up.

The strokes to that point read 43 each, nothing to brag about, considering that the national champion was there. A little later it looked rather rosy for Jerry and Archie, for when Fownes approached short to the brook's bank going to No. 11 the Pittaburgers became 2 down. Although the hole was lost it was through no fault of Ormiston, who dug the rubber core out of a bed of mud with a lusty niblick shot, landing the ball on the green not more than ten feet from the hole. Fownes then missed the putt; otherwise the hole would have been halved. would have been halved.

That was the last hole the New Yorkers won, as, beginning with the fourteenth mistake followed mistake. Travers alone topping two drives and making a hash of as many approaches. As a result Fownes and Ormiston won by 2 up and 1 to play.

football bump of the season a little carlier than usual this afternoon, Colgate trimming the Ithacans, 13 to 7. The upthe Fenn fullback of 1910, came down to Ithaca with a team fully as heavy as Cornell's, with a much more finished team organization and with five or six plays all of which the men knew how to execute well. Taking the advantage of two bad fumbles, Colgate won a clean cut victory.
Al Sharpe summed it up this: "There is nothing to say except that Colgate had a better team." Cornell's tackfield was crippled before he game was started. Butler and O'Connor limped when they went on the field and neither played the game through Hill, the regular fullback, was in only five minutes and that in the third period Bennett, who substituted for O'Connor, made one of the fumbles that cost a HANOVER, N. Pendleton followed suit with a twenty-five yard dash around the other flank and crossed the goal line. He was called back and Princeton was penalized for holding in the line. This merely deferred the touchdown, for Pendleton repeated the performance, gaining forty yards instead of twenty-five.

GOOD BACKS, SORRY LINE.

Tiger Forwards Must Spruce Up If Team Is to Be Success. BY RIGHT WING.

right end, who caught eight yards behind Coincil's goal for a touchdown. The play was cleverly done indeed.

The score remained even until the third period. Taber, who replaced Butler, electrified the stands by a brilliant thirty and runback of a punt, but a few moments later muffed one on his 24 yard line, and Colgate recovered. A forward line, and Huntington wriggled through the ball was brought back for levice on a short pass from centre, the second play making the touchdown.

Playing desperately Cornell rushed from indifield to the 5 yard life. O'Connor zained most of the ground, but within the shall was brought as wenty-five yard run and thus prevented a touchdown. His work was brilled. The lineup.

Pennsylvania started at a fast clip, but after the first hall clum in the distance of the ground started at a fast clip. Dut after he first hall clum in the distance of the goal and as a result it was impossible to get much of a line on the clean pass stained fifteen yards. A bit dazed, his work. He got away for a twenty-grieve at wenty-grieve at which a line on the clean pass stained for a touchdown. The summary:

Princeton Bernhelsell of Baker and Waller the Orange and Black Bryant backs constantly ran back and wonter backs constantly ran back and wonter backs constantly ran back and wonter backs and back and wonter backs and back and wonter backs and back and wonter back and back dleton have taken on weight and to that and Baker seemed to have some drive to his running, hitting the line low and hard

Stevens in the effort to get weight into the forward line had selected men who were not yet down to their true playing weight, and they were therefore slow and ineffective against a set of fast and slippery backs. The Hoboken team also was very green and apperently in the carly stages of development. The Stevens defence Easton. Pa., Sept. 28.-Lafayette won would not have stopped a first class Mich

Even against weak opposition the Tigers The score at the end of the first half showed that they had nothing approachmouth. The Princeton men used their hands very little, stood up to the work. had no lunge and did not seem at all sure of themselves.

The Tiger attack was good enough for the task in hand-good enough to score almost at will-but it was extremely easy to diagnose, depended largely on individual effort and revealed nothing that seemed to approach a settled plan of campaign, The Tigers used the straight Minnesota shift almost constantly, sometimes running Score-I afayette. 20: Muhlenberg, 3.
