

Pfeffer Loses in 11 Innings Despite Stengel's Slugging

By "RICE."
(Special to The Eagle.)
HIAGO, August 11—It apparently is not on the cards for the Brooklyn Superbas to make a half-way decent showing against the Chicago Cubs this year. When the Cubs beat the Superbas yesterday by 5 to 4 in eleven innings they made their record eleven won and four lost in their contests with the Brooklynites in the current season, and that is no fit showing for the Superbas as a team which won a National League pennant in 1916.

Ordinarily, when the Cubs have trimmed the Superbas this year it has been in hollow fashion, as on Tuesday last, when Jim Vaughan allowed them two hits and shut them out. A novelty was introduced yesterday when the Superbas actually went two runs ahead for a few minutes, but the novelty did not deter the Cubs. A stout slugger by Fred (Cy) Williams drove in two runs for them in the eighth inning and tied the score. A large triple by Harry Wolter down the left field foul line, with Flack on first, drove in the winning run for the Cubs in the eleventh.

The Cubs were there with the decisive walk-ups and the Superbas were not, wherefore the Cubs grabbed fifth place by one game and the Superbas are sixth.

Fear the Worst.
This afternoon, in the last game, the Superbas will have an opportunity to do some small deed and square the series of two all, but they fear the worst. They are playing the Cubs in the Superbas on this second invasion of the West is 11 won and 7 lost, which is the best they have done in the present season. Cubs Got the Jump.
The Cubs got the jump in yesterday's game when they scored in the third inning. Flack drew one of the five passes issued by Pfeffer and halfheartedly tried to make a play for the runner. O'Rourke threw out Doyle. Merkle sliced a stray roller to Pfeffer, who let it go straight through his hands and feet. Merkle reaching first, Flack scoring, and Doyle taking third. On an attempted double steal Olson's return to Otto Miller snagged Wolter at the plate. One unearned run.

The Cubs' second inning things gave the Superbas two runs in the fourth. Hi Myers singled to center and took third on Stengel's single past Kilduff. Johnston sacrificed. Cutshaw proved a broken record. He slammed on the ground to Doyle, whose shot to Dillhoefer nipped Myers at the plate. Stengel taking third.

Cutshaw proved a broken record. He slammed on the ground to Doyle, whose shot to Dillhoefer nipped Myers at the plate. Stengel taking third.

One Complicated Tally.
The Superbas collected a complicated tally in the seventh. Cutshaw singled to center and was forced by O'Rourke. Miller reached first on O'Rourke's throw. Doyle's single to center, scored Deal. Deal's single to center, scored Deal. Deal's single to center, scored Deal. Deal's single to center, scored Deal.

Casey Stengel There Too.
Seeking such solace as may be found in defeat, we note that Charley Stengel, who has been a constant grievance to the fans by a piece of Cobbe-cue running and sliding in the eighth. He stretched a middling long double over first base in a triple on sheer nerve and much more speed than the Cubs thought he had, supplemented by a hair-raising slide. The ball reached the plate in the hands of Stengel, and on a perfect throw from Flack, but our athlete eluded the skillful Charley Deal by hook sliding clear around him. What a pity all that brilliant play should be wasted in that defeat as preaching gratitude to the slackers in this country.

Stengel's contributions were with the bat and on the base lines. He singled and scored in the fourth inning, tripled and scored in the eighth and doubled to score in the tenth and failed to score. He walked upon Johnston walked, Cutshaw fanned. In the field he did not have a chance.

Krueger Joins the Team.
Krueger, the catcher waived to the Superbas by the Giants, has joined the Brooklyn team. He is staying in Chicago, and he is staying in Chicago, and he is staying in Chicago.

CONQUERED WESTERN TENNIS INVADER

S. Howard Voshell

Voshell Plays Great Tennis On Courts of Meadow Club

(Special to The Eagle.)
Southampton, L. I., August 11—Chalk up a big credit mark for S. Howard Voshell, the clever young Brooklyn tennis player. The left-hander is the hero of the day. All here are singing his praises and are predicting great things for the young man who this year has been forging to the front in a surprising manner. The laudatory remarks are the outcome of the splendid game that Voshell uncovered on the courts of the Meadow Club yesterday.

The Borough Park expert did something that had been unsuccessfully attempted by all the other tennis players in the East. He defeated John R. Strachan, the Californian, in the convincing style of 2-6, 6-0, 6-4. Voshell then defeated Harold A. Throckmorton in straight sets at 6-4, 6-4. Some tennis to play on a hot summer's afternoon.

West Triumphs in Doubles.
Next to the singles, the most interesting match yesterday was the East vs. West contest in the mixed doubles. Again the honors went to the players from the Pacific Coast. Strachan and Miss Mary Browne had no great trouble in beating B. Alexander and Miss Molla Bjurstedt. The scores were 6-1, 6-4. The summary of the day's play follows:

Voshell vs. Strachan.
FIRST SET: Voshell 2, Strachan 0. SECOND SET: Voshell 6, Strachan 0. THIRD SET: Voshell 4, Strachan 0.

Voshell vs. Throckmorton.
FIRST SET: Voshell 4, Throckmorton 2. SECOND SET: Voshell 6, Throckmorton 0. THIRD SET: Voshell 6, Throckmorton 0.

Early in the second set Voshell found himself. The gallery thought it was his usual in-and-out performance as he took game after game. The spectators were all looking to see him crack, and many anticipated a Strachan victory, even when the score stood 2-0 in favor of the Brooklyn expert. Voshell was not in the cracking business and he allowed Strachan only a single point in the sixth and last game of the set for a victory.

AMATEUR LEAGUE NEWS
Who says Joe Wall is a has been? The slugging first sacker, who has had a varied career, took a jaunt out to Prospect Park last Saturday to see the youngsters perform and was persuaded to break into the center which went for the Trinity Club in the Brooklyn Amateur League. Joe demonstrated that he still has his eye on the ball by garnering five hits, including a triple and a double, to played right field, but did not receive a fielding chance.

Two other real old-timers turned out with Trinity. They played in splendid style. He accepted ten chances without a slip up. However, he failed to get a hit. Dutch Carter, the former Yale pitcher who sponsored a $10.00 team to play with the Glancie when many of the present contingent of big leaguers were infants, was out in the uniform of his alma mater coaching the veterans.

From all appearances the DeCoppert & Doremus will go through the season in the Brooklyn Amateur League, which closes today, without a defeat. The aggregation won both ends of a double-header last Saturday at the Central Club last Saturday.

COBB STILL AFTER ALL-AROUND HONORS

Near .400 in Hitting, First in Total Bases and Runs Scored.

Tyrus Cobb has added another point to his batting average and now is 15 points from the .400 mark, according to the latest averages. Cobb is hitting .385 for 105 games. He has made 156 hits, including 30 doubles, 21 triples and 5 home runs. This slugging had given him the American League lead in total bases with 242.

The Georgian also is leading the league in runs scored with 80 and is creating a big jump from Cleveland for stolen base honors. Cobb has pilfered 32 bases, while the Cleveland pair have stolen 34 and 33, respectively. Chapman, with 55, is far in front of other sacrifice hitters. Pipp Newall went into a tie with each of Detroit for home run honors, each having seven.

"Happy" Felsch made the best showing among the leading batters during four games, jumping from .291 to .304 and is the only hitter on the leading White Sox team in the select 300 class. Speaker suffered a slump, but remained in second place. Roth of Cleveland and Baker of New York dropped below .300. Overworking "Wonderful."
With the midsummer drowsiness at the various links, now is the time to look out for tales of "wonderful" new records. It is too hot to limit this record-breaking to conditions like those obtainable in other sports, where no one can claim a record by going out with a friend or rooming in for 100 years.

It is the time of the year, also, to note the overworking of the word "wonderful." One may rightly protest against feeding the public on the miraculous so often.

Elks and Knights Ready For Ball Game Tomorrow
The baseball teams of the Brooklyn Elks and the Knights of Columbus have been practicing diligently for the game to be played at the conclusion of the patriotic sacred concert to be given by the Knights of Columbus at Ebbets Field tomorrow afternoon. A fast game is looked for as both teams are made up of some of the best players in the local amateur and semi-professional ranks. Van and Schenck, the famous v-jones on the Elks, who also did not get out of the box for the first time in a long while, and man John J. Fitzgerald, Elks' pitcher, are the stars.

Art of Real Foursome Play Shown in Big Team Matches

If the international team matches did nothing else during the week beginning July 23 they did one thing, they showed the New York golf public what the two-ball foursomes are like when played by high-class players. Heretofore the only chance to see good players in action in the two-ball or Scotch foursome has been in the Lesley Cup matches each fall between teams of New York, Boston and Philadelphia. These teams were all amateurs and did not perhaps represent so high a grade of golf quality as the pairs that competed at Baltusrol, Sivanoy and Garden City in connection with the international team matches of the amateurs and pros.

It must not be thought that Scotch foursomes are contests which are to be played just as a four-ball is gone through with—every man for himself in most of the shots, especially from the tee and through the greens. It is most certainly not so. Overlooked, according to some, while others vigorously criticize this aspect of the two-ball contest. The fact that there is this difference of view regarding the way of foursomes indicates that the play may be more interesting than the plain four-ball where everybody plays his own ball.

It is unnecessary perhaps to explain the two-ball foursome. It is played on ball, alternating in the playing of it. For example, A drives from the tee, his partner, B, plays the brassie second, A plays the mashie third to the green, and B makes the dry put. A making the next if B misses the hole.

Experts Differ Widely.
Before the war, when the Royal Liverpool Club defeated the Oxford and Cambridge Society, there was some controversy as to whether the players were supposed to be invisible in foursome play and the morning round of singles found the match all square. It was the opinion of H. H. Hilton, ex-British and United States champion, one of the players who said that the college men overdid what is "generally considered the true art of foursome play, viz., consultative combination. He found there were many who committed mistakes held before the playing of strokes."

Gold Illustrated of London did not agree with Mr. Hilton and deprecated any consultation or advice whatever by one partner during the play of the hole, and said that every time it is indulged in it is worth about half a stroke to the other side.

The true art of combination in foursome play, said Gold Illustrated, "is the art of making the partner know and understand each other's play to a nicety, but who are in close personal sympathy with each other. The art of making the partner know and understand each other's play to a nicety, but who are in close personal sympathy with each other. The art of making the partner know and understand each other's play to a nicety, but who are in close personal sympathy with each other."

Giving Advice a Sacrilege.
"It is not the slightest use partnering two men in a serious foursome, no matter how strong the combination may appear on paper, if there is not the most perfect understanding and understanding between them—not as golfers but as men."

"The relations between the partners in a foursome are so delicate that nothing less than this complete understanding will stand the strain of play. A player who knows his partner's game intimately will naturally and subconsciously do his best to assist him in every way. The bare idea of offering or asking advice in such a combination savors of insult and sacrilege."

It is, of course, no harm in the partners forming a general plan of campaign before the match starts, but consultations and the asking and giving of advice during the actual play of the hole only serve to destroy all confidence."

This advice should be taken to heart by the metropolitan players who are to contend for the Lesley Cup series, for there has been some talk about the team combinations not being the best possible, yet one may ask how the "best" is to be determined. A combination in real foursomes and prefer the four-ball to the two-ball every day in the year except the Lesley Cup day.

If the metropolitan district it may safely be said that the two-ball foursomes during international week were really a novelty. Travers believes in foursome play, and he has a partner, Walter J. Travis for years fought them as being of no value as compared with the four-ball. But even his great influence, which is enough to grant the metropolitan putter up the American game, was not strong enough to Fitting Tribute to Herbert Jaques.

No memorial to the dead is more fitting than that which prominent golfers have thought out as a tribute to Herbert Jaques, the Boston golfer who died December 18, a combatant of golf enthusiasts long associated with Mr. Jaques, are planning to endow a ward in some hospital in France or England for the treatment of Allied soldiers suffering from blindness or injuries to the eyes.

Mr. Jaques in 1903 and 1910 was president of the Boston Golf Association and was president of the Massachusetts G. A. from 1911 to 1914. He was besides one of the leading men in the Brookline Country Club, Boston, from its organization in 1903. The age of three-score. The increasing failure of his eyesight makes peculiarly significant the memorial planned to commemorate him.

WILDER TAKES STOCKBRIDGE CUP.
The title cut in the Stockbridge annual golf tournament was won yesterday by H. H. Wilder, Brookline, president of the Massachusetts Golf Association, who defeated G. W. Quinlan, Racebrook, on the thirty-seventh hole.

Wilder has a weakness for extra-hole matches, having with W. J. Travis at Garden City in the 1908 national championship established a record for extra hole matches in national title play. Wilder and Travis made 10 holes when the veteran proceeded to win four straight to square. Six extra holes were played before Travis won.
