

VETERANS FALL ON OAKMONT'S GOLFING HINDENBURG LINE

AUSTRALIAN STARS DRAWN APART

Patterson in Upper and Brookes in Lower Section of National Tennis Championship at Forest Hills.

The draw for the national lawn tennis championship singles, which begins on Monday at Forest Hills, was made known yesterday, and including the fact that 124 players will be drawn for the title, there are other features of interest.

By KERR N. FRETTE. [SPECIAL DESPATCH TO THE HERALD.] OAKMONT, Pa., Monday.—Swept by another raging rainstorm—the third in three days—until well along in the afternoon, the difficult course of the Oakmont Country Club today was turned into a veritable golfing Hindenburg line, before which many veterans fell and untried youth accomplished prodigies of valor, and in some respects form was shot to pieces in the annual national amateur golf championship.

It was a great triumph for the course, which the contestants have called the hardest that the national blue ribbon event of the links ever has been played over. Rain fell so hard that its difficulties were increased fifty per cent. Casual water collected on putting greens and fairways, and in many cases golf balls were so buried that the contestants ran up many strokes digging the ball clear of the mud into which it had sunk.

Good golfer as he is, Kirkby was unable to get on his feet in the morning, and throughout almost his entire morning round, and what came in with an St. white Gardner, W. H. of Nassau, his partner in the morning round. Kirkby took an eight at the seventeenth.

Despite the fact that several players saved themselves by their closing spurt, scoring evidently was harder after the deluge than it had been in any previous event, there were only three scores under 90 turned in for the second round, against the nine made on the first circuit.

Speaking of dropping a hint, there's a hint in every drop! "Scotch Mists"! Fine, rain or shine. The handsomest sort of fair-weather overcoats, rain-proofed. Exclusive with us.

Never was a greater display of courage given on the links than that showed by the one-time open champion. Outmet said he was at home in bed, and an attack of tonsillitis was aggravated by his being caught in the rain on Sunday morning during the qualifying round. He had a temperature of 102 that night and only arose from his bed on Sunday night.

SPIRITED BOXING AT THE N.Y.A.C.

Judges Disagree in One Amateur Bout and Referee Orders an Extra Round.

Samuel Lagozia, of the Bronxdale A.C., the national A.A.U. champion middleweight boxer, was declared the winner over David Rosenberg, national title holder of the waterweight division, by the judges after an extra period bout at the New York Athletic Club, boxing tournament for amateurs last night. The decision was an unpopular one and was greeted with boos and hisses.

The boys fought three rounds of three minutes each and one of two minutes. The judges announced their inability to agree upon the winner after three rounds had been fought. The referee also was in doubt, and he ordered an extra round of two minutes. To many of the spectators Rosenberg made his debut as a boxer in the second bout in preliminary. William Christie, of the Glencoe A.C., was Lynch's opponent. Honors were easy until near the end of the second round, when Lynch fell and sprained his left ankle. The accident caused him to retire.

One Hundred and Twenty Pound Class—Special Bout—Samuel Lagozia, Bronxdale A.C., defeated David Rosenberg, Glencoe A.C.; three rounds; judge's decision. One Hundred and Fifty Pound Class—Special Bout—William Christie, Glencoe A.C., defeated William Lynch, Bronxdale A.C.; three rounds; judge's decision.
