TEAMS TO DRILL HARD

Mineville Closes Schedule Tomorrow at Silver Bay; Granville's Schedule Is Finished

By GEORGE R. LOVEYS (Sports Editor)

The 1929 grid classic of northern New York, bringing together the championship teams of Granville and Mineville High schools, will be staged the afternoon of Thanksgiving Day, commencing at 2:30, at Derby Park, Hudson Falls.

Definite announcement to this effect was made last night by Coach Samuel Eppolito of the Granville High eleven, winners of the northern conference of the North Eastern New York Public High school league.

Granville First Mentioned Tentative arrangements for the anticipated bitter struggle, exclusiveterday morning, called for the game to be played at Granville, but after further consideration yesterday the committee in charge made the decision to play at Derby park, where the inclosed field will make it pos-sible for the two teams to greatly benefit in a financial way. The Gran-ville field is not inclosed and fans gain entrance through no one es-tablished gate such as at Derby

As announced yesterday morning, everything was set for the game with the exception of the official consent of the Granville faculty. This was

The battle between the northern conference champs and Mineville, winners of the Essex county league, was proposed by the sports editor of The Post-Star because of the excellent records boasted by each at the conclusion of their regular league schedules. The proposal was follow ed by a challenge issued by Coach Matthew Davidson, of the northern eleven, to either Granville or White-

Granville's squad came out of the crucial contest at Whitehall last Saturday in good shape, Coach Eppolito said last night, with the exception of Beecher, star tackle, who was unable to play in the Fair Haven game two days later. U. S. Association to Decide Paying Expenses in Lesley Cup Matches

Matches Involve Competition in Mass., Penn., N. Y. and Canada

NEW YORK, Nov. 14 (P)-The United States Golf association at its quarterly meeting today, considered the question of associations paying the expenses of amateur golfers partici-pating in the annual Lesley cup matches, a competition involving Massachusetts, Pennayivania, New York and Canada.

No decision was announced, bu indications were that the question will be decided by a pronouncement from the U. S. G. A. within the next two weeks.

The meeting brought the members of the executive committee, with one exception, to New York. Harrison R. Johnston, the amateur champion, was ed the 1929 grid season in cen-ter and finished up in fine shape in the backfield—fullback to be absent. Robert T. The Massachusetts delegation, vigorously seeking the right to pay the expenses of its Lesley Cup players, was headed by Alvah W. Hydstroh, president of the state association. The Pennsylvania association was represented by its president, E. B. Leibinring, and two Metropolitan Golf association officials participated in the early discussion, Walter Z. Shafer, retiring president, and John A. Ladds, president-elect. Acting as spokesman for the three associations, Mr. Hydstrom said that he and his associates considered it unfair for the U. S. G. A to pay expenses of Walker Cup players, who have blennial matches with Will be Guests of Granville Great Britain, and deny the privilege to players on state teams. He pointed out also that golfers participating in the annual intercollegiate and publie links championships also are permitted to receive expenses.

The officers of the U. S. G. A held sessions morning and afternoon but upon adjournment late in the day Members of Granville High to be returned later.

Cornell's Season Made or Unmade Tomorrow

particularly because of the fact that we expect to be on hand when the hostilities start, we are unusually interested in temorrow's game at Han-over, N., H., between Gil Dobie's thus far unbeaten and untied Cornell warriors and a Dartmouth team minus Al-Marsters, one of the great backs of the scason. Although the team lacks the color that the great Marsters gave it, Dart-mouth in its gruelling battle with Brown last Saturday, while Cornell was loafing with Western Reserve, showed that it is still formidable enough to give the Doblettes plenty of worriment. But there is a question whether its long string of hard games; including Harvard and Yale, will not have take;

Some of the zip out of the Green's attack.

Perhaps the dope will favor Dartmouth, though the Ithacans seldom have had such a chance for an upset. We believe Cornell will find a tougher proposition in the team against which Yale and Harvard found plenty of trouble than it will in its annual game against Penn Thanksgiving Day.

But, on the other hand, we believe Dartmouth will get more trouble than it might be looking for. Cornell has some good backs, better than last full, and has a mighty sweet tackle in Wakeman.

Tomorrow's game is the thirteenth meeting between the teams and the eleventh in succession. Dartmouth has the edge in victories by having won seven games to Cornell's five. It may be that the thirteenth session will prove unlucky for the Hanover delegation.

Northern Conference Review

A survey of last year's final standings in the northern tier of the Northcastern New York Public High school league reveals that not one of the teams finished in the same order as they did in the schedule just closed. Most startling of the revolations is the drop of Elmer Heldorf's Hudson Falls Tigers from second place to the cellar position, something which is predicted last year would have seemed mighty absurd. Hudson Falls 1927 had a championship grid team. Here's how they finished this and last season:

"Tommy" Allen's warriors finished a little stronger this season, having won one more contest than in 1928, including the all important annual strug-gle with their traditional foe, Hudson Falls. Mechanicville, too, came up a bit, emerging from the cellar berth of 1928 to tie Glens Falls for fourth Granville played brilliant football the entire year, led by Art (Greek)

Pagones, stellar quarterback, and thus took a jump from third place of 1928 to the top of the heap. Saratoga, like Hudson Falls, went farther down the line, although not in such disastrous fashion as the Washington county clan. A tie inst year with Glens Falls saved the Spa from the same record it had this season; one which could give them no better than a tie for last place.
